

Introduction to Results for the Class of 2013

The purpose of this survey is to monitor high school students' perceptions of their high school experience. Results are used to improve the campus environment and program supports for students. Survey results also are used in the monitoring of the districts' strategic plan Goal 3, which includes the measures of student self-confidence and attitudes toward school, work, and success. Seniors' responses to the multiple choice questions are organized into the following categories: postsecondary intentions and family support, high school experiences and campus climate, instruction and technology, postsecondary preparation and advising, and additional results.

About this survey.

The 11th annual Austin Independent School District (AISD) High School Exit Survey was administered online to seniors in every AISD high school during Spring 2013. On each campus, Project ADVANCE facilitators primarily were responsible for ensuring all seniors were given the opportunity to complete the survey. Special education chairs at each campus were tasked with providing eligible special education students with guidance and assistance in completing the survey.

This report contains the results for the AISD Class of 2013 at this campus. Where available, data are presented from previous senior classes and the district-level to compare with 2013 responses. At Lanier High School, 255 students in the Class of 2013 completed the survey, for an overall response rate of 78.9%.

At the district level, 3,772 students in the Class of 2013 completed the survey, for an overall response rate of 87.9%. District-level survey results are provided in a separate report and are available online.

Lanier High School senior's comment: High school was a very hard but fun experience. I loved the FFA [Future Farmers of America] program my school offered.

Lanier High School senior's advice to incoming freshmen: Participate in extracurricular activities—colleges expect them. Practice your writing and develop your voice—a good essay can go a long way.

Extracurricular activities provide intellectual and social development opportunities for students. Schools that provided more extracurricular activities and had more student participants had better academic outcomes in terms of students performing at grade level and staying in school than did schools that provided fewer such activities (Stearns & Glennie, 2009).

Compared with those who did not work, seniors who worked longer hours had significantly lower academic achievement, attendance, and educational aspirations. They were less engaged in extracurricular activities. They also were less likely to enroll in college. However, seniors working longer hours were more likely to save their earnings for postsecondary enrollment and were less likely to be unemployed 2 years after high school (Marsh & Kleitman, 2005).

For nearly every statement in Table 8, the 2013 cohort's responses were more positive than those of their 2012 counterparts.

The odds of enrolling in a 2- or 4-year college, relative to not enrolling, was found to increase with the frequency with which parents discussed education-related topics (e.g., grades) with their children. Furthermore, a positive relationship between the frequency of parent-initiated contact with the school about academic issues and the odds of enrolling in a 4-year college was found to be particularly important for African American students (Perna & Titus, 2005).

The completion of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is important to entering and completing postsecondary education, especially for economically disadvantaged students. Students who completed the FAFSA were found 50% more likely to enroll in a 4-year college than were those who had not. Eighty-three percent of AISD's Class of 2010 who were enrolled in a postsecondary institution after high school completed a FAFSA (Looby, 2012).

Table 27. How easy has it been for you and your parents to understand the process of applying for financial aid?

Degree of ease	Campus 2012	Campus 2013	District 2013
Easy	17.8%	12.3%	26.3%
Some parts easy, some parts difficult	44.0%	50.6%	47.9%
Difficult	18.2%	22.6%	10.6%
I did not apply for financial aid	20.0%	14.5%	15.2%

Lanier High School senior's comment: Push more students to do [their] FAFSA and apply to college!

Table 28. If you did not submit a financial aid application, why not?

Reason	Campus 2012	Campus 2013	District 2013
I do not need financial aid to attend college	3.8%	2.9%	22.7%
My parents were not willing to submit private financial information	5.7%	17.6%	7.2%
My family did not think we would qualify or be eligible for financial aid	9.4%	11.8%	16.6%
I do not plan to go to college	26.4%	20.6%	13.7%
I did not know about the financial aid process	54.7%	47.1%	39.9%

District wide, about 14% of students did not submit a financial aid application. About 39% of these students reported they did not need financial aid, and almost 40% did not know about the process.

Full-time tuition and fees for a semester cost about $900 at ACC, ranged between $4,673 and $5,369 at UT, and were $20,433 at Harvard. The total cost of books and supplies for 1 year of college was estimated at $1,100 by the College Board. Researchers consistently show that most parents and students are uninformed or poorly informed about college prices and financial aid, and students' postsecondary decisions are influenced by this limited knowledge (Perna, Lundy-Wagner, Yee, Brill, & Tadal, 2009).

Note. This question was changed in 2013, which precluded comparison with prior years' results.

At the district level, seniors most frequently reported their parents or other adults as sources of information regarding postsecondary financial support, while Lanier High School seniors most frequently indicated that their information came from school counselors, advisors, and/or Project ADVANCE staff.
